Cat keeping in Logan

- desexed unless the cats are owned by a registered breeder
- kept in an enclosure, building or structure that prevents the cat from escaping from the premises at all times.

Lost an animal?

Please check the Impounded Animals page on our website regularly. A photo and description of each impounded animal is uploaded to logan.qld.gov.au. You will need to visit the Animal Management Centre in person if you identify your pet online.

There are many reasons why a personal visit to the Animal Management Centre is critical to reuniting you with your pet.

- your cat or dog may have lost its collar or tag
- face to face recognition (many cats or dogs look similar)
- how our staff describe the breed of your cat or dog and the website listing may be different to how you would describe your pet
- your pet may be in transit to the Centre.

We recommend checking with other Council's and welfare agencies to see if your pet has been impounded outside the City of Logan.

Check with local vets and community Facebook pages for missing pets.

Did you know? First time impounded cats and dog are released free of charge if the cat or dog is registered, desexed and microchipped.
